This course examines sexuality with an emphasis on understanding the historical, cultural, economic, and political factors that contribute to the construction of sexual identities, relationships, and institutions. Topics to be addressed include differentiating biological sex, gender and sexuality; understanding gender diversity cross-culturally; sexuality, class, and racial stratifications; cultural constructions of sexuality; the emergence of sexual identities and movements in the United States; child sex trafficking, and the global sex industry; the global HIV/AIDS crises. Ethnographic and national cases included in the course include Native North Americans, Pacific Islands, Indonesia, India, and contemporary U.S. urban culture and its class, racial and ethnic variations. Underlying the course’s focus on specific topics and case studies will be an examination of essentialist and constructivist notions of sexuality. The course relies particularly on cases and examples that defy assumptions of “norms” in gender and sexuality. The course encourages students to move beyond their own experience and engage in open discussion and exploration of the wide range of variations found in the expression of genders and sexualities in human cultures across time and space.

REQUIRED BOOKS
1. A Course Pack is available at the Duck Bookstore.

Exams:
There are two in-class exams and one Final Exam in this course that will test you on the readings, documentaries, and lectures. It is important that you come to class regularly, do the readings, and pay attention to lectures. Each exam will be composed of multiple choice and short essay questions. You are encouraged to meet with the professor or the GTF assigned to your section if you have difficulties with the material.

Class Attendance and Participation: It is important for you to attend classes regularly and participate in discussions. Please note that your participation will be judged on your command of the readings, and not on ad-hoc comments.
Absences:
I will not accept absences/excuses for exams unless proper documentation is provided. In case of an illness, please provide us with a doctor’s note. In the case of a family bereavement, please notify the professor or the GTF assigned to your section. For example, if your car breaks down on the highway and you cannot attend class to take the exam, please provide us with a legitimate form of proof.

Class Rules:
This is a big class, so please be considerate and respectful of the professor and fellow students during class. Students are expected to be respectful to each other during class. Please do not interrupt anyone while they are speaking in class. Please do not interrupt class or professor by passing notes, giggling in class, text messaging, cruising the Internet, etc.

Here are some dos and don’ts for this class:
Please read the materials prior to class.
You are strongly encouraged to meet with me and the GTFs during office hours.
You are allowed to bring beverages to class but no food is allowed.
You are encouraged to bring to my attention news articles/books/videos you think may be of interest to the class.
Please switch off your cell phone prior to class.
Please do not arrive late for class or leave early without prior notification. If you have to leave early for some reason, please sit close to an exit.
Please do not to read newspapers or use text messaging in class.
Please understand that such behavior is both disrespectful and disruptive to the instructor and fellow students. Such behavior violates the university’s code of student conduct. I will take off points for disruptive behavior during class. In extreme cases, I may ask you to leave the class. In return, I will do my best to provide you with the information you need to succeed in the course, and make it an enjoyable learning experience.

E-mail Message Policy. The best way to communicate with me is via e-mail. However, in the course of a day, I receive many messages, and it is not possible for me to respond to all of them. However, I do want to make sure that your questions and concerns are addressed in a timely manner. I am available to discuss questions pertaining to class readings during my office hours, and meet with you after class. During Monday thru Thursday, you will get a response from me within 24 hours. For messages sent to me on weekends, I may not be able to respond to you until Monday morning.

Similarly, the Graduate Teaching Assistants (GTFs) are also busy with their own work, so please send e-mails judiciously, and give them 24 hours to respond to your queries.

Blackboard. Please read Blackboard regularly for class-related announcements. Changes to class scheduling such as class cancellations, questions for reading, etc. will be posted on Blackboard. I will communicate with you via e-mail messages thru Blackboard. Please note that I will use your university email address, and not your private yahoo account. So, activate your university account.
Disabilities. Students with disabilities who will be taking this course and need disability-related accommodations should inform the professor immediately and file documentation with the Office of Disability Services (164 Oregon Hall) or visit their website: http://www.ds.uoregon.edu.

Plagiarism or academic dishonesty is a very serious academic offence. Any student caught plagiarizing will automatically get a Fail grade for that assignment. Plagiarism consists of inserting phrases, sentences, paragraphs or more from another source without proper attribution including quotation marks and a footnote indicating the source. It also includes using purchased papers or downloading material from any Internet source without explicit quotation. If deemed necessary, I may report you to the Office of Academic Dishonesty.
