The following communication was said to be from B. Richards:

A committee of the Faculty have investigated the case of B. Richards to inform you that the Faculty regards your position as a student as somewhat dubious. It is felt that there is a serious failing off in the studies of your work last year and that your habits were very discouraging to a student. You have also certain conditions to make safe in your studies.

It is felt by the Faculty that there should be a re-enforced effort in the quality of your work this fall. That you should be industrious and that you might be made up, before the end of the first semester, which is felt by the Faculty that because of negligence on your part would involve a permanent separation from the University.
