Re: Who is the enemy?

Dear Editor,

Who exactly are the enemies of the American people?

Are they working folks fighting for a minimum wage that someone can actually live on, and who want good paying jobs here in America with benefits they can retire on? Or are they corporations that ship jobs overseas, slash benefits and declare bankruptcy to avoid pension obligations, while providing golden parachutes for their executives?

Are they those that want energy independence, clean electricity and and sustainable transportation? Or are they fossil fuel companies looking for short term profits, while they pump out air pollution and carbon dioxide, thus degrading our health and our children's futures?

Are they people fighting for better healthcare in America, who want every American to have access to quality medical care? Or are they the insurance companies that profit by denying care, and the pharmaceutical companies that get people addicted to their overpriced products?

Greedy CEOs and lobbyists pollute our clean air and water and block affordable health care for working Americans. All so they can pad their bottom lines and executive bonuses. These are the enemies of the American people.
