Climate Master Program Assistant: Work Study/Intern Job Description
Climate Leadership Initiative seeks to hire a work study student or intern for up to four terms, beginning this summer, to assist with running and fine-tuning a program designed to support residents in reducing greenhouse gas emissions at the household level, with the goal of developing a nationally replicable model. The “Climate Master” program is a 30-hour train-the-trainer course in which participants learn emission reduction strategies in their homes/yards, transportation, food, consumption and waste, then “pay” for the low-cost class with 30-hours of education and outreach on the topic.

The Climate Leadership Initiative is a climate change education, research and technical assistance program in the UO Institute for a Sustainable Environment. Information about CLI and Resource Innovations (our parent organization) can be obtained through our website: http://climlead.uoregon.edu and http://ri.uoregon.edu.

Position Description (Actual tasks may vary as the program changes)
Graduate Work – up to 7 hours/week:
- Research and writing related to above mentioned project. Specifically, fine-tuning evaluation methods, program and outreach materials, and updating web content.
- Logistical support for fall, 2008 and spring, 2009 Climate Master training programs, including:
  - Scheduling presenters
  - Working with community partners to promote the program
  - Recruiting participants
  - Coordinating volunteer outreach activities
  - Data entry
  - Additional support as needed

Desired Skills:
- Excellent communication skills
- Strong attention to detail
- Ability to work independently and in collaboration with others
- Excellent research skills
- Excellent ability to write clearly for technical documents and for lay audiences
- Basic computer skills
- Applicants must be enrolled as a graduate or undergraduate student at the University of Oregon.

Additional Information
Hours: 7 hours a week, potentially more in summer
Salary: $12.00 - $14.00 per hour
Duration: One or more terms
