Parse this!

Inspired by John Blatz and Jason Eisner

The following sentence, though bizarre and deliberately confusing, is perfectly grammatical:

"The weasel that the dog that trees the cat thinks loves smiles eats skins."

Answer the following questions. In some cases, the answer may be "nothing in this sentence".

a. What is the Subject of this sentence? (Give a single-word answer.)

b. How many verbs are there in the sentence?

c. What trees what?

d. What thinks what?

e. What loves what?

f. What smiles?

g. What eats what?

h. What skins what?

i. What is the main Verb of this sentence?