WELCOME TO THE SHOW! I hope it is a pretty gnarly event in which I get to demonstrate to you, the friends and family, that I definitely still play music.

It is a sad affair when children and young adults who love music are not able to pursue musical studies in their entirety. Unfortunately, many people are destined to drop music due to lack of resources and funds.

Mu Phi Epsilon, a professional music fraternity, is offering a solution to at least one student from anywhere in the United States. Because our group is small, we are not able to advertise out from the West Coast, but we hope the communities around here in Oregon are the ones who are most likely to apply and receive said solution.

Right now, Mu Phi is fundraising and putting on concerts in attempts to earn approximately $600 for one student to attend camp. Our goal is violently close to its completion and we ask dearly that those of you who are here today, if you have the spare funds, to please offer your assistance to my buddy in the back. I'll point he/she out at the end of the show. For more information, you can visit this website.
