

The Creative Writing Program's

Kidd Tutorial Program

A yearlong sequence of courses for undergraduates in creative writing, intellectual inquiry, and craft-based research

Application Guidelines

Successful applicants are expected to make a yearlong commitment to the Kidd Tutorial Program. If you can't commit to all three terms, please do not apply.

Accepted students

- are expected to attend ALL Kidd Tutorial classes (MW, 2:00pm-3:50pm)
- must make sure other major-required courses will not conflict with Kidd Tutorial classes
- typically carry no more than 15-16 credits per term, including the Kidd Tutorial credits
- need to be willing to participate extensively during class discussions
- who carry a 3.5 GPA or higher are eligible for Kidd Tutorial Program scholarships (scholarships are awarded based on financial need) [Note: Post-bac UGs are not eligible for program scholarships.]

The following materials must be submitted with your application form on the next page:

- 1 A typed statement of interest, up to 2 double-spaced pages in length with a 12-point Times Roman font and one-inch margins all around, addressing the following:
 - What kinds of questions drive you as a writer? What themes arise in your work?
 - What literary authors have influenced your work and why? (Please be specific in terms of craft and style.)
 - Describe your interdisciplinary interests, for example art history, music, philosophy, environmentalism, women's studies, cultural studies, etc. How might these interests enrich the tutorial and your writing?
 - Can you make a yearlong commitment and why would you find it valuable to do so?
 - What do you believe you have to offer in an environment that stresses both creative expression and rigorous scholarly engagement? Will you be able to participate extensively during class discussions?
- 2 A writing sample of work in the applicant's preferred genre: three poems, or up to fifteen pages of fiction (no more than two short stories total). Plays, screenplays, and journalism are not accepted. The work you submit should be an example of your very best writing and should be proofread rigorously. Manuscripts must be typed. Your name, UO ID, and title of work should appear in the upper right-hand corner of each page. Multiple page pieces should be stapled. Prose must be double-spaced. All work submitted must have a 12-point Times Roman font and one-inch margins all around.
- 3 A recommendation from an instructor who can describe your creative and scholarly pursuits, as well as your responsibility, attendance, and participation in class. The instructor must complete the form and return it in an envelope, sealed and signed across the flap, directly to the Creative Writing Program office. Should the instructor choose instead to write a letter, he or she may follow the directions on the attached form.
- 4 An up-to-date copy of your transcript with GPA. A downloaded, printed copy from DuckWeb is acceptable.
