Course Description:

In this course, we will read Hegel’s Phenomenology of Spirit as an introduction to his theory of determinacy (his ‘metaphysics’), which we will see relies on a theory of modernity. In the Phenomenology, Hegel sets out to transform what he took to be the most compelling insights of Kant’s critical philosophy. He does so by showing that the norms that provide determinacy to our experience in the world are socio-historical institutions, and that the fact that such norms have a grip on us has to do with normative authority. We will therefore track Hegel’s views on the relation between normativity and authority in his theory of concepts, action, morality, and history. More than providing an account of authoritative norms, however, Hegel is interested in tracking the way in which norms lose their authority over us. We will thus pay particular attention to the prevalent role of negativity, loss, and diremption in Hegel’s theory of determinacy. As we advance in our reading, we shall compare and contrast various interpretive perspectives on the text, such as epistemological, historicist, ethical, and feminist readings of the Phenomenology. Knowledge of Kant, while not required, will be most helpful.

Required Text:

Graduate students with reading knowledge of German are encouraged to refer to the original Phänomenologie des Geistes, ed. E. Moldenhauer and K.M. Michel, Werke in zwanzig Bänden, vol. 3. Frankfurt am Main: Suhrkamp Verlag, 1969. You may order the text on amazon.de.

Terry Pinkard’s unpublished translation of the Phenomenology – including the German text – is available online: http://web.mac.com/titpaul/Site/Phenomenology_of_Spirit_page.html. It is also a helpful resource.

Secondary Texts:

Students are required to read at least one commentary alongside Hegel’s text. See below for list. Recommended secondary sources marked * are on reserve at Knight.

Course Structure and Requirements:

Attendance:

You are expected to attend classes regularly and promptly. More than 3 absences will result in a failing final grade, unless proof of illness or emergency is provided. If you are absent, please email me to inquire about readings for the next class and assignments.

Participation:

The lecture will presuppose familiarity with the assigned readings for the class session. Having read the assigned text and coming prepared to participate in class discussion are requirements.
Commentaries:
You will hand in 3 3-page commentaries on specific sections of the text. You must merely explain the section of Hegel’s text that you have chosen. You should not respond to the argument critically or constructively – the commentary should be merely exegetical.

Prospectus:
You will submit a one-page prospectus stating the topic of your paper and the argument that you intend to pursue. Graduate students must include an annotated bibliography with at least 3 secondary sources that you intend to use.

Final Paper:
Undergraduate Students: This 8-10 page paper should develop further—both exegetically and critically—one of your commentaries.

Graduate Students: This 12-15 page paper should develop a thesis about a section or problem in Hegel’s Phenomenology. You must situate your thesis within relevant secondary literature. Engaging secondary sources is a requirement.

Please see schedule of readings for due dates. All papers are due by 2pm at the Philosophy Department (box at the counter) and electronically via SafeAssign. No late papers will be accepted, unless accompanied by proof of illness or emergency. All of your work must be typewritten (12 pt. font, Times New Roman, double-spaced). You will be expected to cite philosophical texts that you are quoting, paraphrasing, or using as reference appropriately, including secondary literature and online resources. Please refer to the Guidelines for an Analytic and Critical Reading and Writing, which will be handed out in class.

Guidelines for papers:
• clarity: the paper should have a clearly defined topic and focus.
• accuracy: the paper should present an author’s position in a fair way.
• assessment: the paper should evaluate the author’s position, and bring to bear on the text or issue your own view; you must defend your view.

Statement on Plagiarism:
Plagiarism is the intentional or unintentional unacknowledged use of someone else’s work as one’s own in all forms of academic endeavor (such as essays, theses, examinations, research data, creative projects, and so on). Plagiarized material may be derived from books, journals, Internet postings, student or faculty papers, and so on including the purchase or “outsourcing” of written assignments for a course. Plagiarism is grounds for failing the course. For more information, see http://www.libweb.uoregon.edu/guides/plagiarism/students/.

Grading Standard:
A = excellent. No mistakes, well-written, and distinctive in some way or other.
B = good. No significant mistakes, well-written, but not distinctive in any way.
C = OK. Some errors, but basic grasp of the material.
D = poor. Several errors. A tenuous grasp of the material.
F = failing. Problematic on all fronts indicating either no real grasp of the material or complete lack of effort.

Grading:
Class participation 10%
Commentaries (3) 30% (10% each)
Draft—final version will be distributed in class and posted on Blackboard

Prospectus 10%
Final paper 50%

Accommodation for a Disability:
If you have a documented disability and anticipate needing accommodations in this course, please make arrangements to meet with me soon.

Students must turn off cellular telephones for the duration of the class.
